“You can eat the world’s most delicious ‘Spaghetti Neapolitan’ in Naples, Italy. Is this true?” The answer is “No.” “Spaghetti Neapolitan” is a Japanese dish. You may know that curry and rice in Japan is very different from curry in India. But did you know that hiyashi chuka is not a Chinese dish?  too.

About 150 years ago, when Western culture came into Japan at the beginning of the Meiji Period, people saw and ate Western food for the first time. At first, Western dishes were not very popular because they used a lot of meat. Most Japanese did not eat  before the Meiji Period. Western dishes were changed in Japan because they would be good to eat with rice.

Chefs put rice inside an omelet and made omu-rice. In Western countries, pork cutlet was cooked with a little oil in a frying pan, but tonkatsu was fried like tempura in a pot. Tonkatsu was cut before it was served. Japanese people could eat it with chopsticks instead of a knife and fork.

These dishes got very popular and they became everyday dishes in Japanese homes. These dishes are called yoshoku. That means Western food, but they are really Japanese dishes created from Western food.
